BACKGROUND OF THE INVENTION

0001. "Dermawear" residing in the medical field is a subgarment of cloth equipment set forth as a useful stratagem of skill and ingenuity in defeat of, or against the inoculation of sexually transmitted diseases of the male genital region.

0002. Endeavoring to achieve a purposeful end of health for all men, "Dermawear" is classified as medical equipment, because the related subject matter of sexually transmitted diseases in this invention (Dermawear), on behalf of the male genital region, warrants it and further defines the scope of "Dermawear's" functioning authority to thwart the attainment of skin pathogens upon the male pubic area.

Prior Art: "Not Applicable."

BRIEF SUMMARY OF THE INVENTION

0003. The substance of "Dermawear" is its practical use as a protective subgarment (Fabric Shield) during sexual intercourse.

0004. The utility object of "Dermawear" is its specific action of purpose to protect its user from sexually transmitted diseases, since prophylactic use alone leaves the pubic hairs and scrotal skin exposed during genital copulation; "Dermawear" protects these exposed areas.

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE DRAWINGS

0007. Figure 3C is a representation of the different borders that the "Receptacle Rim" can have as a shape.

DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF THE INVENTION

0008. To produce "Dermawear," a person of ordinary skill in the pertinent art of subgarment manufacturing can make this invention without experimentation, by simply taking 100 percent cotton fabric and interlocking (weaving tightly) the material and double butting (a 2 in 1 subgarment) the cloth; and in the center of the subwear at exactly the location of the penis, cut out a 1/2 inch hole (See figure 2B/Drawings) or "Receptacle Rim." The hole ("Receptacle Rim") may be set forth in a circle (or triangle, rectangle, octagon) as its primary border.

0009. "Dermawear" is set apart as a new invention, predicated solely upon its intent or application of utility (use and/or function). That is, "Dermawear" and the "Receptacle Rim" is newly functional based upon the intent of use by its user.

00010. "Dermawear's " intent of application makes it dissimilar from all other subgarments, and therefore it is a new invention.

DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF THE INVENTION

00011. The "Receptacle Rim," (1) Receptacle: a container, as in the subgarment itself, containing the male genital region; (2) Rim: a hole within the garment primarily bordered as a half inch circle which serves as an outlet for what is contained; in the case of "Dermawear," that would be an erect penis.

00012. "Dermawear" as a subsgarment with its "Receptacle Rim" is a combined function of use (utility): protective (fabric shield) and an outlet (Receptacle Rim): (1) protective of pubic hair and scrotal skin; (2) and a safe outlet for an erect prophylactic penile shaft.

CLAIM

Independent Claim #1:

00013. In chattel, what I claim as my invention is: the "Receptacle Rim" of "Dermawear," which cannot be independent of the subgarment (fabric shield) since the subgarment itself serves as the protective aspect of "Dermawear"; and the "Receptacle Rim" is an outlet for an erect penis.

Independent Claim #1:

00014. What I claim as my invention is: the subgarment made of any type of fabric, but primarily consisting of 100 percent cotton set forth and combined with a "Receptacle Rim," which are dependent components in alliance for one purpose: to protect the male pubic region and scrotal skin from sexually transmitted diseases; and in the nature of this purpose exists "Dermawear," my claim of invention.

Independent Claim #1:

00015. "Dermawear" is a pioneering concept, and what I claim as my invention is the "Receptacle Rim" and its shielding subgarment made of any type of material (polyester, rayon, tweed, etc.), but primarily consisting of 100 percent cotton.

CLAIM

Independent Claim #1:

00016. What I claim as my invention is a subgarment (fabric shield) with its "Receptacle Rim" worn only at the time of sexual copulation, and therefore distinguished by its consumer purchase for intent of application; and the intent of application is established within the intent of manufacture of "Dermawear" (fabric shield) and its "Receptacle Rim." A claim "within intent of manufacture" means applied use or intent of application by consumers for the sole purpose of protecting themselves against sexually transmitted diseases; hence, "Dermawear," my claim of invention.

Independent Claim #2:

00017. What I claim as my invention is "Dermawear's" intent of application: "Dearmawear" is not for the vanity of fashion as an intent of consumer application with respect to appearance, but it is protective wear.

Independent Claim #3:

00018. What I claim as my invention is "Dermawear's" intent of application: "Dermawear" is not for the ordinary and common consumer use as a subgarment of comfort against the friction of surface apparel, but it is protective wear against sexually transmitted diseases.
